

The Outside are an international band based in Berlin, with members from Chile, Israel, and Germany. Music is political. Metal is the genre of firm positions. We have ours, presented on our latest album "We Feel Through the Dead". Close to The Outside's sound might be one between Crowbar, Kreator, Voivod, adding our own distinct touch.

"We Feel Through the Dead" was preceded by a first Demo in 2009, then our self-titled debut (SAOL/H'art 2012), which received excellent reviews and was followed by several tours in South America and Europe. Our music against the worldwide abuse of power grew more dark and demanding on "Dawn of the Deaf" (Bret Hart Records 2015), praised for its ferocity. Artist Claudio Bergamin (Judas Priest, Battle Beast, Ayreon, Paradox) contributed with his cover paintings to the first two albums. Several videos were produced with Abysmo Films (Kreator, Arch Enemy, Helloween, Therion, Vader). The Outside have been present on stages nearly all over Europe – touring in Germany, Sweden, Norway, Poland, Czech Republic, Belgium, Austria, and the United Kingdom, for instance supporting thrash metal legends Sodom or performing at Metalfest Germany.

"We Feel Through the Dead" is a political album. Metal against elitism and populism, against borders and exploitation, against religious fanaticism. For a world more fair and just. Others might be silenced or feel impelled by neoliberal ideas or right-wing positions. The Outside won't.
